This course, co-presented by an attorney and a mental health practitioner, will focus on legal issues that commonly arise in mental health practice. Topics covered will include the following: confidentiality and privilege, how to handle interactions with attorneys and court systems, how to manage subpoenas, court orders, record requests, and custody issues, and tips for testifying in court, as well as ways to minimize liability in practice. The training will specifically discuss how Professional Counselors, Clinical Social Workers, Marriage and Family Therapists, and Psychologists are discussed in Kentucky law—outside of their specific board law. We will review general tips for legal business practice in the mental health world that minimizes liability and risk. The course will include a question and answer portion where attendees can pose questions related to the training topics.

Learn practical applications to your practice that can benefit you on a daily basis—learn to manage legal correspondance and feel more confident in how you practice and navigate legal pitfalls especially when dealing with difficult cases that interact with court including high custody dicvorce, custody, and other cases where you may get supbeonaed or called to testify.
